Assignment Distributed:

Assignment Due:

Assignment Description:

The painting depicted to the right, is Chagall's "Prodigal Son". It represents the homecoming of the son as told in Luke 15:11. We see the warm embrace of the father, the return of innocence in the son resting on his father's chest, the restoration of intimacy between the two, and the joy in the community – even a girl bringing flowers. There are many more symbolisms in this painting but that's another class and another assignment.

For this assignment I would like you to re-read Ex 20:1-21 and then produce some form of "artistic" expression that conveys the scene, of God, passing the Law to Moses, and through Moses to the people of Israel. This expression may be a painting, a drawing, a collage, a shadow box – diorama, a sculpture, or any other form. The form is totally up to you. Also, feel free to set the scene metaphorically – you do not have to paint "GOD".

Additionally, please provide a brief textual description of your expression. It's length only needs to be long enough to supplement your work.
